

COURSE DURATION ADJUSTMENTS DUE TO RPL

Students may obtain exemptions, also known as Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL), for up to 67% of subjects in a course. If you are granted RPL, your course duration will be shortened. The amount of course credit granted will determine the total number of trimesters you must complete. The total number of trimesters required will vary and may be longer if you commence in Trimester T2X.

The tables below outline, for each course, the course duration that will be required based on various RPL scenarios. Please note you must still undertake a full-time study load and complete your course within the expected duration shown on your CoE. Refer to Study Loads for International Students (<https://www.kbs.edu.au/admissions/forms-and-policies>) for more information about annual and required study loads.
